JERSEY RAMBLINGS

by Lee Widjeskog

I awoke this morning thinking about Memorial Day. This is a day that is set to honor those who gave their lives for their country. It originally was set to remember those who died in the American Civil War and was first observed in Waterloo, New York in 1866. Over the years it has been used to honor those who have fought in all the wars of the USA since the Civil War. In 1971 it was made a Federal Holiday that is observed on the last Monday of May. The tradition is to decorate the graves of soldiers on Memorial Day formerly known as "Decoration Day".

For those of us in Ripcord, it is a good time to recall the lives of our fellow soldiers who have passed away or were killed in battle.

Odors tend to be remembered better than just about anything else sensed. After 40 years since being in Vietnam many of us cannot remember the names of the guys we lived with day in and day out for 6 to 12 months but we can easily remember the odor of fuel oil mixed with human waste, the scent of tear gas, diesel exhaust from the 2 1/2 ton trucks, the smell of cordite (gun powder) from a fire fight, the fishy body odor of the NVA, the scent of decaying vegetation, the earthy smell of the jungle floor as you hugged it in an attempt to get flatter, the dried vegetation of a recently cut LZ (landing zone) and the putrid odor of decaying or burning flesh. These and others when encountered today cause your mind to go back in time and sometimes to feel very unsettled.

Now, fast forward to Memorial Day 2011. 0730 my wife, Kathy and I don our motorcycle jackets, helmets, boots and gloves as we head out to breakfast on the Honda. It is warm (79 degrees) and humid as we travel down the empty roads. The holiday has most people sleeping in or just starting the day later than usual.

Living in southern New Jersey we do not have the crowds normally associated with the Garden State. Passing by Parvin State Park we can smell the scent of honey suckle found along the openings near the road.

Inside the forest we can spot the mountain laurel in full bloom.

The roadways are full of sights and odors this time of day. The freshly plowed fields give off the smell of earth. A truckload of hay bales reminds me of growing up when my father and his friends stored hay in our barn for the milk cow. Corn is just coming up and stands a mere 8" tall at this time. The winter wheat is turning a golden brown and will be ready for harvest by the third week in June if the weather holds out.

As we pass along a low swamp we see the snapping turtle walking along the road in search of an open field to lay its eggs and catch a hint of the swamp water smell.

Moving down the road we pass a peach orchard that has been sprayed in the past few days as the smell of the chemicals and the carrier linger in the warm humid air.

In the distance we spot a bald eagle nest and behind it yet further away are the bright white church spires in the small community of Daretown. By now we

FROM THE EDITOR

I would like to thank everyone for all the letters to the Editor that you send me. This keeps the newsletter interesting and gives other members updates on how you are doing. Please keep them coming.

I retired from working in March of this year as I turned 62 years old, and I am hoping to spend a lot more time keeping the website updated. So, send me a lot of information pertaining to the battle of Ripcord to put on the site.

In April, we had a small gathering of Ripcord Veterans meet in Mt Laurel, NJ for dinner. It was an excellent time. More about this gathering is in this newsletter.

Our website, www.ripcordassociation.com is bringing in a lot of new members who just happen to google "Ripcord" and find out about us.

We have 717 members in our Ripcord Association.

535 are Ripcord Veterans

182 are Associate Members have travel 15 miles and the traffic is picking up as we approach the community of Woodstown. We quickly pass through town and are soon going past small roadside stands offering strawberries or asparagus. A dead raccoon gives off an odor we are quick to pass over and forget. Luckily today there are no dead skunks in the roadway.

Finally we reach our destination in the town of Carney's Point where we buy breakfast. Once done we head home with a brief stop at a roadside market to buy some fruit. But it is warming up to over 85 now and we are hoping to get home before it gets any hotter. Riding on the bike is comfortable and cool but stoplights cause us to heat up rapidly in the high humidity. After a total run of 70 miles we have come full circle and are home! It was nice to get out and employ the sense of smell and sight a little more vividly that we do in the car or truck. Those senses plus hearing have not been used that efficiently since 1970. Then those who were grunts learned to employ the sense of smell, sight and hearing to the nth degree because it helped with your survival. If you leave the comfort of your car, you will find those senses come into play once more if you let them. So get out and walk, run, bike, or canoe but leave the I-pod and M3P player home and use the phone only if you need it. There is a world of things out there to stimulate your sense. It won't all be fun, but it will be interesting and generally better than the smells of 40 years ago! Enjoy the outdoors while you still can.

See you in Indianapolis

Proud to Serve My Country

Our own Cpt. Isabellino Vazquez will soon be publishing a book styled "Proud to Serve My Country". The book will tell the story of the performance of the gallant 65th Infantry in the Korean War, a regiment comprised of Puerto Ricans, as well as some stories about Cpt. Vazquez while serving in Korea and Vietnam. Cpt. Vazquez is the most remarkable man I have ever met in my life and was the epitome of what it is to be a "professional soldier". He is an "American Icon" to all that served under him. I look forward to reading this book with great anticipation when it is published. Thought you all should know about this book coming out.

INCOMING MAIL

Dear Ripcord Family

I have waited until Jenny had a couple of post operative appointments behind her to give you all an update. Jenny's surgery was a long one lasting from 11:30 am to around 5:30 pm but the stress was waiting the 3-4 days for the biopsy report. I am ecstatic to tell all of you that through your very generous and kind prayers for Jenny that all reports show that the cancer was at Stage 0 and that she has a 99% chance of it never coming back. With this said, Jenny will have to go for a yearly MRI to be on top of things. Jenny is slowly recovering as the process of reconstruction (that will take probably into the first part of 2012 to complete with its different steps) is a very painful process. She's a real trooper though and the idea that she is cancer free keeps her very positive and motivated. If I haven't told you "My Ripcord Family" enough then I will say it again. YOU ALL ARE SO FANTASTIC AND SUCH ACOMFORT AND SUPPORT!!! It is such a wonderful feeling that I can always count on each of you to be there for me.

My sister Gerri and I are already mapping out our plans for the reunion in October. It will be so good to see each of you again and catch up on everyone's lives.

My heartfelt love and appreciation to all of you!

I was shot down on huey leaving fsb gladiator while trying to support ripcord most were injured, I may have been the only one not injured. ammo bearer and medic went home. never heard status of door gunners or pilots. I carried a 60 at that time. We were first bird into LZ. Could not get second bird in for quite some time. I was not a regular prayer but did quite a bit that day. I never realized how many NVA in area until years later. glad i didn't know then.

Hi there,

I'm conducting audio and video research for a History Channel production, and am curious if any of your members have film/audio from their time in Vietnam. I do notice that you have some wonderful film on your website. The film we're producing is "Vietnam in HD," and some of the firebases feature somewhat prominently in the script. Some vets might be familiar with our work on World War II, as we also produced WWII in HD for the History Channel.

We're searching for 8mm and 16mm film from in-country or the home-front between 1964-1975. We are also interested in any cockpit/ground audio recordings veterans may have and are willing to share. As a courtesy, we will transfer any film reels to DVD for veterans, something that we've found helps bring these documents out of the attic to be viewed again for, most times, - the first time - in years.

Might you be able to help; if so I can have Sonny, one of our NANVETS reach out to give you a call.

Warmest Regards,

I had a platoon in A/2/506 until late 1969. LTC Crowell moved me to the BN S-4 until my departure in June, 1970. Many trips from Camp Evans to Ripcord from March to June, 1970. I just found this website....brings back many memories..some very good...some not so good.

Thanks for still being here.

Lee,

Please send me a hardcover copy of Ripcord. My daughter in-law picked up my copy while visiting over the Thanksgiving holidays and got so interested in it that she asked where she could get her own copy. Of course, I was glad to accommodate her wish.

I'm glad Chuck and Nolan hooked up for this book, even though I strongly disagree with his treatment of my unit. The story documents the courage and integrity of a group of US soldiers answering the call of their nation when it definitely was not "Cool" to do so. I'm still proud of "my guys", as I am sure you are of yours.

Best Wishes,

John Smith

Mr. Widjeskog:

As I think Jeff Wilcox may have mentioned to you a while back, I'm interested in conducting oral history interviews with Ripcord Veterans for archiving purposes. I'm a history professor at Grand Valley State University in Michigan, and run the GVSU Veterans History Project, which conducts and archives oral history interviews with veterans. We post our interview videos in our own online digital archive (see our website, www.gvsu.edu/vethistory), and share materials with the Library of Congress for their national Veterans History Project.

I interviewed Jeff several years ago, and thanks to him found Keith Nolan's book, which I have now used several times in my college classes. I have also brought Jeff into those classes (that REALLY gets the students' attention) and use his interview video as homework.

What I would like to do, if it's OK with your group, is to attend the reunion in Indianapolis and record some interviews with whoever is willing to talk to us. I would either come by myself or bring along a second interviewer (Mike McGregor, who was with the 1st Cav in Vietnam in 67-68) if it seems like there would be a reasonable number of people willing to be interviewed. If I am to do that, it will help to have some sort of invitation from the group to attend, and perhaps some info about it posted on your website and facebook page to encourage people to sign up.

The interviews are conducted in an open-ended format, and we don't press people to talk about things that they don't want to talk about. We don't have any political agenda beyond giving the men who served in Vietnam credit for doing as well as they did in what was often a bad situation. I don't have the impression that Keith Nolan archived his interview materials anywhere (if he did, do you know where to find them?), and it would be good to have each man's full story available, rather than the smaller parts that made it into the book. Each veteran who does an interview will receive a DVD copy of it, and the videos will be posted in our archive for the benefit of students and researchers. The association may also have copies of the interviews to use however they see fit. On our website, we post detailed outlines of each interview that are linked to the time codings in the videos, which makes it easy for people to search the database and find whatever they're looking for.

So if you think some of your people would be interested in this, please let me know, and I'll get things organized on this end. Thank you for your time, and I hope I get the chance to meet you in October.

Ripcord Veterans gather in Mount Laurel, NJ

On April 9th, 2011, there were eleven Ripcord Veterans and some of their spouses that met in NJ. for dinner at Prospectors Steakhouse and night club. It was a great time by all. The manager of prospectors, Rich and the DJ Cowboy Kenn made our evening a very special event, along with all the bartenders, waiters, waitresses and even the patrons that were there that evening went out of their way to thank us in a very special way. We even had a visit from the past Commanding General of Ft Dix to welcome us. To look up the story wrote in the South New Jersey Courier Post about our gathering, or to see the photos taken by Cowboy Kenn go to our website www.ripcordassociation.com and click the links to their website.

ANNA BRITT NOLAN TRUST FUND

Just a reminder—the reunion in October will be here before we know it. Now is the time to think about what you might be able to bring to contribute to the raffle for the Anna Britt Nolan Trust Fund.

Mary and I are continuing our efforts to find other Vietnam Veterans groups who Keith Nolan wrote about who might be interested in helping raise funds for Keith's daughter, Anna Britt. Unfortunately, we have met with little success so far, but we are continuing our efforts in this regard.

We were just thinking the other night that there are more than 700 members of the Ripcord Association now. Wouldn't it be great if every member would donate $5.00 a year to Britt's Trust Fund. Just think how fast that would grow and help ensure that Keith Nolan's daughter can someday go to college. We realize there are already members who donate on a regular basis—and we would not expect them to do more than they are already doing. But if you have never given to the Fund, perhaps now is the time to think of making a donation—no matter how large or small. Just $5.00 from every member would make a huge difference in the growth of the fund.

By the way, we were just speaking with Keith Nolan's mother, Ulla, the other day and she tells us that Britt's current passion is to learn Japanese. She continues to do well in school and, like her father, loves to write. We are sure Keith is smiling down on her and very proud.
